Public Health Project Associate – Maternal and Child Health National Indian Health Board

About the Organization

The National Indian Health Board (NIHB) is the nation's premiere leadership organization in Tribal policy and advocacy around health systems and appropriations, public health, behavioral health, policy analysis, and communications. This dynamic non-profit organization was created by the Tribes in 1972 to serve as the national, unified voice of the Tribes to elevate concerns and innovations around health to the highest levels of law and policy makers. NIHB also provides critical health information to Tribes, technical assistance and programming and serves as an education and outreach bridge to media, philanthropy, and external audiences. NIHB makes an impact on the health of American Indians and Alaska Natives (AI/ANs) as we serve all 574+ federally recognized Tribes. We passionately strive to hold the federal government accountable to uphold its trust obligations to the Tribes for health and health systems, behavioral and public health services and capacities. NIHB serves Tribes that run their own health systems through compacting and contracting as well as those that receive their care directly from the Indian Health Service. Learn more about NIHB at www.nihb.org.

NIHB's Public Health Policy and Programs \(PHPP\) is the largest and fastest growing Department within NIHB, PHPP provides national leadership in the Tribal public health space. We are dedicated to creating impact through conducting culturally-informed policy, budget analysis and advocacy to promote, build and sustain Tribal public health. Our program work is responsive to Tribal community needs and is grounded in making maximum impacts toward reclaiming healthy Native communities and individuals and celebrating, supporting and sustaining healthy Native youth.

Position Description:

NIHB seeks a motivated PHPP Project Associate to support current and future efforts to reduce maternal mortality and improve maternal and child health through adaptation and development of maternal mortality education materials for dissemination in Tribal communities. The Project Associate will work closely with the PHPP Program Coordinator and Manager, as well as work directly with Tribes to advance Tribal public health capacity through increasing Tribally-focused maternal and child health educational materials and resources, and assist with grant workplan development to ensure sustainability of current maternal and child health programs. The Associate will provide technical assistance and subject matter expertise to Tribes and Tribal organizations interested in adapting and developing maternal and child health educational resources and outreach for their Tribal community. A successful candidate will possess a passion for strengthening Tribal public health infrastructure and building a Tribal public health network, as it relates to improving AI/AN maternal and child health outcomes. The position may work on other projects within the public health department, as assigned and appropriate.

As part of a whole team approach, the Project Associate will work in teams with NIHB staff members to assist in planning and hosting policy and program events. This may include securing speakers, helping with program and track development, providing administrative support leading up to and during the conference, taking notes in policy and consultation sessions, serving as a moderator or speaker and participating in event marketing. This includes NIHB Annual Tribal Public Health Summit and Annual National Tribal Health Conference.

This is a full time, Washington DC-based position; some travel will be required.

Required qualifications include, but are not limited, to the following:

- Bachelor's degree in Public Health, Health Administration, Health Science, Public Policy, Political Science, English, Public Administration or similar field is required.
- Experience with Tribes or national Tribal serving not-for-profit organizations is required.
- A minimum of one year's experience in public health programs / projects (ideally including experience in grant writing, program evaluation, and reporting).
- Familiarity with federally and privately funded grant operations.
- Experience preparing culturally-appropriate education materials for American Indians and/or Alaska Natives.
- Strong organizational skills and the capacity to execute priorities in a timely manner.
- Respect for American Indians and Alaska Natives cultures and the health of Tribal communities.
- Ability to multi-task, manage priorities, and excel in a fast-paced work environment.
- Ability to work with diverse teams of people.

This is a grant-funded position: Employment is contingent upon funding availability.

HOW TO APPLY: Interested candidates must include the following to be considered:

1. Your current resume
2. Your cover letter specific to the position for which you are applying, including why you confident that you would be a good fit for NIHB and the amazing work we do
